Committed to Putting Our Values in Action

It was January 2020 when we came together to begin work on the publication you are reading today. Our regional economy was booming, community events were bringing people together in support of vital causes, and our team members were out in the community volunteering.

Obviously, much has changed since January. Yet what hasn't changed is Old National's commitment to community and social responsibility. In fact, that commitment is stronger and more important than ever as we provide an essential service that helps ensure the strength and stability of our clients and the communities we support.

Much of this 2019-20 Community & Social Responsibility Report centers on activities that took place in 2019, with the back page focusing on our COVID-19 response. Certainly, we all look forward to a time when we can resume community activities without concern for one another's health and safety. Until then, please rest assured you will find Old National putting our values in action—every day—to help our teammates, clients and communities not only survive, but thrive.
